On September 23, LADOT told us that the project is in the pre-design phase. The project webpage is now live and includes a small timeline update from the project manager in the "About" section that appears in the lower half of the landing page: https://ladotlivablestreets.org/projects/center-city-SRTS . It also includes a map of project boundaries and street typologies. Once the project scope is finalized, LADOT says they will update the webpage with more detailed documents. Our next steps mainly consist of reaching out to community partners with this website and information as a lever to get people interested in the upcoming outreach. | |
